Initial DACA Application Information Sheet and Requirements

What is Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA)?

Deferred Action is a form of prosecutorial discretion that provides protection from deportation for two years to certain undocumented youth. The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) first announced the DACA Policy on June 15, 2012. USICS started accepting DACA requests from applicants on August 15, 2012.

Deferred action has existed on a case-by-case basis for many years, but DACA is a specific deferred action program for youth who came to the U.S. as children or teenagers.

Those who are granted DACA received deferred action for a period of two years, with the possibility of renewal. Deferred action comes with eligibility for work authorization, and therefore a social security number, and eligibility for a driver's license or other State identification.

Who qualifies for DACA?:

1. Be at least 15 years old,
2. Was under 31 years of age as of June 15, 2012,

Understanding the Criminal Bars to the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals

Criminal Bars to Deferred Action

If a person falls in one of the criminal bars above (and not one of the listed exceptions below) he or she may still be able to qualify for deferred action if he or she can show exceptional circumstances. Such approvals are likely to be very rare.

Offenses That Do Not Lead to Automatic Disqualification

NOTE: Even though these offenses do not trigger the "automatic" criminal bars, DHS can consider them under the discretionary public safety threat and totality of circumstances analysis, described below.

Any Criminal History Can Result in a Discretionary Denial
